Golf's Full Spectrum

THINK GREEN: As in eco-friendly green, with manufacturing processes that produce fewer greenhouse gases. AHEAD's Cocona line of polos for men and (in the Kate Lord line) women, uses an all-natural fabric derived from coconut shells. $48 to $70. www.aheadweb.com.
VERTERRA SPORT has five solid-color men's polos in a high-performance fabric made from 52 percent corn fiber. $44. www.verterra.com. The DIXON EARTH BALL is made from 100 percent renewable materials. $40 a dozen. www.dixongolf.com

THINK BLACK: In this year's U.S. Women's Open, LPGA player Nicole Castrale made a strong showing (she tied for sixth), and a striking showing in ASHWORTH's rendition of golf's Little Black Dress. Castrale decided to go to the dark side each Sunday she makes the cut, and Ashworth created a version that will be available in the fall. $120 to $160. www.ashworthinc.com

THINK RED: In this case, think ways to avoid the red of sunburn. The GREG NORMAN COLLECTION 2-Below microfiber polo not only cools the body by two degrees, but offers a UPF sun-blocking factor of 40+. Available in five different colors, including red. $85. www.shark.com/gregnormancollection

THINK SILVER: Using the same forging process and craftsmanship that makes its iron sets works of art as well as play, MIURA GOLF has fashioned two toe-weighted offset putters. The Series 1957 putters have milled faces and oiled-chrome finishes and are available in a Classic design (which comes in two weights) and a Blade putter. $390. www.miuragolf.com — THOMAS BEDELL
